The different schools and colleges of Richmond invited to be present.

Last night brought in the greatest crowd that has been seen at the Con federate Bazaar, the big hall being packed to its utmost capacity.

Above stairs in the ball-room the re ception of the visitors to the Conference on Education was held. The hall wa beautifully decorated by Hammond, the groups and bankings of palms being relieved with Easter lilles and silvery green of Southern bamboo and smilax outlining windows and wreathing chandeliers. Flags draped from the gallery were caught in the center by a great mass of lilies.

Receiving Party.

Receiving Party.

The receiving party was very large, aumbering, among others, Governor and Mrs. Andrew J. Montague, Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Joseph E. Willard, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Valentine, Mrs. L. R. Dashiell, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Travers, Mr. and Mrs. B. V. Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Parrish, Mr. and Mrs. J. Taylor Ellyson, and others.

The banquet hall was exceedingly effective, adorned with palms and smilax. The center table had a magnificent shower of American beauties, donated by Hammond. They filled a cut-glass vase which rested on a lace center-piece. The shoat, the saddle of mutton and the ham were all in place, and the table recalled the days of generous living and open-handed hospitality in old Virginia. Guests were served from the anteroom the menu, including delicious salad, beaten biscuit, cyster pates, salt almonds, olives, mints, leca, cakes and coffee. Every arrangement was finished and perfect, and the management in the hall olives, mints, ices, cakes and confee, Every arrangement was finished and perfect, and the management in the hall refected the greatest credit on the chair-man of the entertainment, Mrs. W. M. Wade, and her efficient committee.

A Great Throng.

A Great Throng.

In the bazaar hall the promenade aisles and the restaurant were thronged. The Dime Museum given by the Missouri table was the most wonderful success. It was given twice last evening and will be repeated by request. Virginia Table.

There is quite a collection of books at the Virginia table, some sent by publishers, other given by the authors themselves. "The Social Ladder," by C. D. Gibson, is very handsome. "Life of General Lee," by Mrs. Emily Mason; "That Dear Old Sword." by Mattle Gray Dangerfield; "Children of Destiny," by Mollie Elliot Seawell; "The Two Parsons," by George Wythe Munford; "Lady Paramount," by Henry Harlond, "A Tar-Heel Baron," by M. S. C. Pelton; "Confederate Sorap-Book," by Lizzle Cary Daniel; "Uncle Jerry's Platform," by Gillie Cary; "F. F. V. Receipt-Book," by Mrs. C. C. McPhall; "Vanity Fair," Thackery, two sets. A child's coat was sent on yesterday, white cloth, lined with white slik, leather belt, also a scarlet cloth golf-coat. All the above to be sold at a reduction.

Solid South Table Solid South Table

The Solid South table continues to be a point at which peope of many and varied tastes meet, only to become fascinated with the innumerable articles of use and beauty displayed and go away ladened with their spoils. Shoppers looking for burgains would do well to examine the boxes of black and colored sewing silk which are going for 25c. a

Dalnty packages of seeds of the beautiful yellow California peoply prove irresistible to the flower lover, who is anxious to experiment with foreign substance on home sell, and the Golden Gate is further represented with articles of polished wood, made from the huge California trees and ornamented with hand-painted designs. Perhaps the most artistic articles in the booth are the handsome dinner cards of California views that would form a feast for the eyes at any dinner and the tally cards decorated with Confederate flags to make a unique feature for card games. The interest of the young people is also absorbing in this booth for a veritable queen of a doll is being voted to the most popular little girl. Miss Nell Wise is in the lead with Miss Ida Massile, a second and Miss Virginia Levy third. Waving over all these treasures and forming a brilliant canopy for them is the enormous slik Confederate flag to be voted to the most popular Confederate Camp and the fortunate winner will certainly have a trophy to be proud of. The chameter drill and Punch and Judy show for the children, under the able management of Mrs. George A. Lyon will take place this afternoon, Friday, April 24th and a hearty invitation is given to all. Misses Bessle and Lelia Hill will have charge of the booth and with their attractive assistants, will be pleased to serve all who call. South Carolina Day.

South Carolina Day.

April 25th will be South Carolina day at the hazaur. The afternoon hours will be occupied by a children's entertainment. In the evening the "barn dance" will be repeated in the down-stairs hall by request. Mr. Miller's colored musicians will play melodies—not harmonies—such melodies as will turn everybody's thoughts to dancing, and once more in the history of the bazaur an old-time Southern evening will be brought back to the memories of those who enjoyed such.

The South Carolina table is always an inviting spct, always the center of lively interest and brisk bargaining and selling. Its committee is one of the most energetic at the bazaar.

Emma Jackson, alias Sarah Robinson (colored), a Hanover county negress, was arrested yesterday at noon by Officer Nelsz, who identified her from a description left with him by one of the many people who have suffered from the criminal operations of the woman. As a result of the arrest about $500 worth of stolen goods, consisting chiefly of wearing appared for women, was captured by the officer and the sergeant. A goodly portion of this has already been identified and turned over, while there still remains at the Second Station $100 worth of valuable sliks, woollens, etc. It is alleged that the woman for the past several months has made a practice of obtaining employment at different residences, working a day or a portion of a day, then leaving with all of the valuables obtainable. These she carried to her country place.

When arrested yesterday, the woman confessed to a number of robberies and the officer drove twelve miles toher home in a buggy. The vehicle was too small to carry all of the clothes, and yesterday afternoon together with Sergeant Sowell, he brought the stuff to the city in a wagon. Much of it has been recognized and claimed.

CITY JAIL IS ROASTED

And Jall Commission Also Receives Much Attention.

LIVELY COUNCIL MEETING

Joint Committees Discharged and Contractors Will Be Paid-Jail Pronounced Too Filthy for a Dog to Live In.

With a mild denunciation of the Jail Commission, during which the new prison was characterized as too filthy for a dog and the reference of the report of the commissioners to the Grounds and Buildings Committee, the storm which has been brewing over the new city jail problem came to a head last night at a special meeting of the Common Council. The Finance and Grounds and Buildings The Finance and Grounds and Buildings Committees were discharged from further consideration of the question of extras, and so far as the contracting builders—the Stewart Iron Works, of Cincinnatiare concerned, the matter is over and done, and they will be paid in full for the extras, probably next week.

The meeting was called at the request of four members of the body for the purpose of discharging the joint conference body, and the report of the Jail Commission, together with a communication from Judge Witt, of the Hustings Court, was admitted under a suspension of the rules.

When the body was called to order the When the body was called to other the report of the two committees was read, whereupon they were relieved from further duty, the Council being acquainted with the ruling of City Attorney Pollard on the question. Thus far the session had been extremely quiet, and no sign was out to manifest the approaching climax, which culminated in a stirring speech by Councilman Hicks, made in defense of the Orounds and Buildings Committee, of which he is a quate, incomplete and poorly constructed. The paper set forth a list of needs, cov-The paper set forth a list of needs, covering two sheets of typewritten pages. From their point of view the prison, not yet entirely finished, is on the verge of falling to pieces and is insecure. Evidently they did not overlook a detail of the building, so far as workmanship was concerned, but no reference was made to the alleged filthy condition now prevathe alleged filthy condition now prevaconcerned, but no reference was made to the alleged filthy condition now prevalent there.

Speaking for the chairman of the Grounds and Buildings Committee, Mr. Grimes, who was absent, Mr. Bottom took the report of the commissioners in detail. He answered practically every reported defect.

"To my mind," said Mr. Bottom, "this is a tempest in a ten pot, and the pot will break. It is a remarkable report this allwise and ever yigilant commission (this said sarcastically) has aubmitted to the honorable judge of the Hustings Court, Many of the defects referred to have already been remedied, while others were being fixed even while the commission was in the jall."

Mr. Bottom denied that the steam pipes were breaking from the walls, while he calamed the cell locks worked perfectly when the buildings was accepted. The hot water furnace was being fixed while the commission was in the jall, and the shower baths had been fixed by a competent plumber. Referring to the statement that the gas fixtures were dropping been ruined and broken through the carelessness of employes of the prison, while the committee had already decided to the committee had already decided to erect a fence about the fail to keep meddlers from breaking in the fail. "But," continued the speaker, "the most remarkable part of that report is that not a word is said of the filthy condition at the jail—it is absolutely abominable. And the commissioners saw it, for they visited the prison before we did and on the same day. They could not for they visited the prison before we did and on the same day. They could not have falled to observe it. The report is truly remarkable for its unfairness."

Concluding, Mr. Bottom said with proper care the place could be made safe and healthy, while he, as a member of the Grounds and Buildings Committee, had the approval of a clear conscience that the body had acted fairly and with
